Press Release

Polyven International and Asia Direct Trade join forces to service an emerging global solar market.

Miami, FL, June 9, 2009: Asia Direct Trade and Polyven International have joined forces to expand their reach into the solar arena. This is part of a global effort that capitalizes on Asia Direct Trade's consulting and supply chain logistics and merges this competency with Polyven International's new business development with end use marketing and cross platform selling capabilities. Their current product lines will provide a complete vertical integration stream from silicon raw material, silicon ingots, silicon wafers, silicon cells and PV solar panels capable of one of the highest industry efficiencies with both UL and CE certifications. Both companies are committed to expanding the reach of these new and emerging technologies in the marketplace.

John Denzer, CEO for Polyven International said, "We are very pleased with our new association with Asia Direct Trade in order to expand our business by bringing consumers the highest quality products while providing a substantive economic advantage to their business model". He added, "It is our hope that with a combined consulting approach and guided path to bridge the non-traditional supply chain dynamics, we will add value to our clients and thus allow them to compete more effectively in a global economy".
